FEDERATED MOVEMENT ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Work of Classes Will Be Described at Convention

MANY GOING FROM COUNTY

Expected That in Neighborhood of 200 Will Attend From This Part

At the special request of W. G. Landes, the State Sunday school secretary in charge of the program for the State convention at Altoona from October 12 to 14, inclusive, the Charleroi Adult Federated Class movement, which has attracted widespread attention, will be explained by Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, who is the county Sunday School president. Rev. Kerr received a communication recently from Mr. Landes asking him to make an address before the convention on the subject and explain the workings of the local organization.

The Charleroi Federated classes, composed entirely of men, through its prominent work, religiously and socially for the betterment of civic and moral conditions generally, has become known all over the State and it is stated, federation of a similar nature are to be formed shortly to be patterned after it.

Washington soon is expected to send a big delegation to the convention, it being practically estimated that in the neighborhood of 200 Sunday school workers will attend. Rev. Kerr stated this morning that great interest was being manifested hereabouts, and that from Charleroi he thought there would be at the neighborhood of 25 persons including officials delegates. The railroad companies have granted a special rate but to secure this it is necessary to secure a certificate from the county secretary, Mr. Harry L. Stewart.

Mrs. Stewart has been appointed by Mr. Landes to make an address and her topic will be "Temperance Committee."

RECEIVED PAVING PETITION

Property Owners Along Long Alley Want Grading and Paving Done

At the last meeting of council Ira L. Nicholson was instructed to write to the Carnegie Gas company of Pittsburg, asking them make repairs to the fire alarm system, which it is said is not in proper working order. The Monessen Gas company installed the system some time ago, but within the last year or so it has been in bad condition and has received the closest attention of the borough electrician to keep it in anything like working order.

A petition was received from the property owners along Long alley between Seventh and Eighth streets asking that the alley be paved. The petition was placed on file.

W. B. Gault of the special committee appointed to secure the police automobile patrol, made a report that the patrol wagon, which has been in possession of the borough for some time, had been fully paid for, through subscriptions. The machine was officially turned over to the borough this night, and was received with thanks. The machine is proving a wise investment, having already been used in many instances both as a patrol and ambulance.

Farmers are For Tener

The most satisfactory political meetings Representative Tener is attending in his tour of the State are those at which his audiences are composed largely of farmers. Mr. Tener has delivered several addresses at county fairs and at other gatherings patronized by farmers and dairymen. These meetings have been notable for Republican enthusiasm. The Pennsylvania farmer understands perfectly the issues of the campaign, and therefore is entirely unresponsive to the blandishments of the demagogue. This year, as usual, an overwhelming majority of the rural voters will support the Republican Party. That party in Pennsylvania and in the nation invariably has responded to the demand of the farmer for legislation that will advance its welfare.

This will be a big year for the Pennsylvania farmer. He is assured of fine crops and good prices. The industrial supremacy of the Keystone State and its tremendous mining interests overshadow its agricultural importance. Many Pennsylvanians do not realize that this is one of the largest wheat growing States. This year, according to the estimates, the wheat crop of Pennsylvania will amount to thirty millions of bushels. This production will be exceeded only by the five great wheat growing States of the Northwest. In this State are 225,000 farms and many farmers do not raise wheat. Only two or three States exceed Pennsylvania in the value of its dairy products.

The duty of the Pennsylvania farmer this year is perfectly clear. He should talk for the Republican ticket until November 8 and then vote for it. In the revision of the tariff the farmers demanded protective duties on agricultural products and got them—from the Republican party. No other American producer was so well cared for in the revision of the tariff. Naturally, the farmers of Pennsylvania are grateful for what has been done for them by the Republican party, and they are anxious to give expression to their appreciation. They can do this in an emphatic manner by joining the Republican hosts who will record an unprecedented majority for the Republican ticket.

Mr. Tener's candidacy has proven very popular among the Pennsylvania farmers. His home is in a rural county and he understand thoroughly the requirements of residents of rural districts. He is an earnest advocate of the general extension of the good roads system and other projects with which the farmer is directly concerned. In the majority for the Republican ticket every farmer in Pennsylvania should be included.

What Old Soldiers Think

At a meeting of the War Veterans Club of Philadelphia, held at Logan Hall, Philadelphia, on Saturday, October 1, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, During the many years of its supremacy, the Republican party has faithfully kept every promise made for the betterment of the people, and the advancement of the interests of the Veterans of the Civil War, and

Whereas, The candidates on the Republican State ticket are men of unimpeachable character and acknowledged fitness, and eminently qualified for the respective offices for which they have been nominated and that they are justly entitled to, and should receive the united support of the Republican party. Therefore be it

Resolved, That The War Veterans Club of Philadelphia hereby endorse Hon. John K. Tener for Governor, Hon. John M. Reynolds for Lieutenant Governor, Hon. Charles Frederick Wright for State Treasurer and Hon. Henry Houck for Secretary of Internal Affairs, candidates of the Grand Old Republican Party, and pledge their earnest and hearty support to said candidates, and further promise to use all honorable means within their power to bring about their triumphant election.

This is signed by W. H. Redsheffer, president of the old soldiers' club, and W. J. Wray, secretary. The object of the club is to further the interests of comrades, and it has a large following.

Portugal's Revolution

By a short and not very bloody revolution in Portugal, the monarchial government has been overthrown and a republic declared. This revolution has taken place at Lisbon, the capitol of the government, but whether the same spirit of revolt against monarchy exists in the provinces enough to unite the spirit of democracy, remains yet to be seen. The chances, however, for the establishment of a stable republic, are not particularly favorable.

Although the spirit of democracy has flamed fiercely upon the European continent during the past fifty years, the movement has not resulted in self-government to any appreciable extent on the part of the people. Empires have risen and fallen, and old dynasties have been overthrown and new ones established, but France is the only republic to be formed out of the political chaos of European politics during the past half century. The people do not seem to be educated up to the requirements of self-government, and many opportunities for the abolishment forever of the monarchial form of government have gone by the board because the common people have not risen supreme at the crucial period. This is what is likely to happen to Portugal, and although this revolution will no doubt result in the elimination of much of the mediaeval elements that have hampered intellectual and material progress, it will not place the people in supreme command of the government.

The Cry of the Age is "Back to the Farm"

With the best market in the world at his door, the intensive farmer located in the Monongahela valley is the wise man of his generation.

Every town has as much need of the small truck, fruit and poultry farms around it as it has for more factories. Such farms make living better and cheaper for the laboring man and more business for the merchant.

I have secured control of a large farm within five minutes walk of the borough limits and will, within the next six weeks, sell it out in small farms. I now have purchasers for about one-half of it and owing to the great demand for small farms near Charleroi expect to close all sales for these farms in a very short time.

A farm big enough for all the boys to work as a truck, poultry and fruit farm while the father works at the mill, can be bought for the price of a cheap town lot. Good country school nearby.

A farm big enough to require the whole time of one intensive farmer can be bought for $500.00. Read the Pittsburg papers about the great land show which will be held there within the next few weeks and learn what can be raised on a few acres of ground by the new methods of intensive farming.

Call at the office of Charles O. Frye, 511 Washington Avenue, and get full particulars.

TEDDY FOLLOWED LEAD OF PENROSE

New York Platform the Same as Pennsylvania's.

ON ALL NATIONAL ISSUES

Republicans of Two Great States to Battle Under the Banner of Taft and a United Party.

Pennsylvania salutes New York and congratulates the Empire State for following the lead of the old Keystone commonwealth.

Under the leadership of Colonel Roosevelt the Republican convention recently held at Saratoga followed almost literally the planks of the platform bearing upon national issues adopted by the Republican state convention at Harrisburg, with Boies Penrose as the leading spirit in the party organization.

In their declarations of fealty to the time honored principles of the Republican party, their commendations of the splendid and remarkable work of the Taft administration, and the placing upon record of the progressive legislation of the present Republican congress, and especially their praise of the new tariff act, as not only framed to protect American capital and labor, but to insure largely increased returns for the support of the federal government, New York Republicans, with Roosevelt dominating their convention, were no more earnest nor emphatic than were the Republicans of this state, who weeks before had worked in accord under the leadership of Penrose.

Two Conventions Contrasted.

The Pennsylvania convention was the most harmonious ever held in the history of the state; there was not a dissenting voice to any plank in the platform either in committee or on the floor of the convention, and an unprecedented feature was the fact that not an opposing candidate was placed in nomination and not a vote was cast against any one of the men nominated on the state ticket.

While the New York gathering was most spectacular and sensational, Teddy finally had his way, and his way as far as the platform was concerned, at least, was "the Pennsylvania way."

Roosevelt and Penrose have been fast friends from the time of their college days. No president could have treated Penrose in the matter of personal consideration and patronage better than did Roosevelt. That under their direction Republicans of these neighboring states will work in unison to promote the general cause of Republicanism may be taken for granted. In close congressional districts on the border [illegible] the Republican committees of both states will work together to defeat the common enemy, the Democratic party.

Roosevelt Appreciates Pennsylvania.

Roosevelt within a few weeks, in his speech in Pittsburg, gave evidence of this appreciation of the work of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, when he was unstinted in his praise of the school laws, the liberal appropriations to public schools and to charities, the legislation to protect the lives of employes, for the conservation of the forests and the water ways and the other meritorious laws upon the statute books.

It has been a matter of comment that the one issue for which Roosevelt fought hardest in the New York convention, that of direct primaries, has already been met under the Penrose leadership, and along with the uniform primaries, Pennsylvania has the corrupt practices act and the personal registration law, which were passed by Republican legislators and signed by a Republican governor.

President Taft is showing a keen interest in the success of the Republican party in every state in the Union and his speech at the dinner of the National Republican League in New York attests the concern he has for the election of every Republican nominee for congress.

Penrose Confers With Taft.

Senator Penrose had a couple of personal interviews with President Taft in Washington last week, following his official conferences with him and Postmaster General Hitchcock regarding the establishment of postal savings banks. As chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, Senator Penrose has given the subject of postal banks much study and he says he is pleased with the progress being made by the postal department to provide for this innovation. He is of the opinion that the proposed system is in advance of the methods employed in older countries.

Senator Penrose's conferences with the president were made the occasion of much newspaper comment. The Washington, D. C., Evening Star, an independent paper, directing attention to the strength of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, made this statement:

"Senator Penrose, since the wiping out of the New York "Old Guard" bosses, remains, next to Theodore Roosevelt himself, the greatest political chieftain in the country. Undisputed in his control of the Republican organization of the surest Republican state in the Union, Senator Penrose watches with interest the factional strife and contention all over the country. The storm has not reached his own state, and he and his organization are passing through the most quiet year politically they have had in some time. It is so placid that Senator Penrose has had little to do in the way of directing the leaders throughout the state."

Penrose seems to be one of the few prominent men in the Republican party who stand well with "the Old Guard," and who are on intimate terms with Roosevelt. It is believed that the relationship between Roosevelt and Penrose has more of a personal side, but while he was in the White House there was no one with whom Roosevelt talked more confidentially upon important political matters than he did with Penrose.

Farmers are For Tener

The most satisfactory political meetings Representative Tener is attending in his tour of the State are those at which his audiences are composed largely of farmers. Mr. Tener has delivered several addresses at county fairs and at other gatherings patronized by farmers and dairymen. These meetings have been notable for Republican enthusiasm The Pennsylvania farmer understands perfectly the issues of the campaign, and therefore is entirely unresponsive to the blandishments of the demagogue. This year, as usual, an overwhelming majority of the rural voters will support the Republican Party. That party in Pennsylvania and in the nation invariably has responded to the demand of the farmer for legislation that will advance its welfare.

This will be a big year for the Pennsylvania farmer. He is assured of fine crops and good prices. The industrial supremacy of the Keystone State and its tremendous mining interests overshadow its agricultural importance. Many Pennsylvanians do not realize that this is one of the largest wheat growing States. This year, according to the estimates, the wheat crop of Pennsylvania will amount to thirty millions of bushels. This production will be exceeded only by the five great wheat growing States of the Northwest. In this State are 225,000 farms and many farmers do not raise wheat. Only two or three States exceed Pennsylvania in the value of its dairy products.

The duty of the Pennsylvania farmer this year is perfectly clear. He should talk for the Republican ticket until November 8 and then vote for it. In the revision of the tariff the farmers demanded protective duties on agricultural products and got them—from the Republican party. No other American producer was so well cared for in the revision of the tariff. Naturally, the farmers of Pennsylvania are grateful for what has been done for them by the Republican party, and they are anxious to give expression to their appreciation They can do this in an emphatic manner by joining the Republican hosts who will record an unprecedented majority for the Republican ticket.

Mr. Tener's candidacy has proven very popular among the Pennsylvania farmers. His home is in a rural county and he understand thoroughly the requirements of residents of rural districts. He is an earnest advocate of the general extension of the good roads system and other projects with which the farmer is directly concerned. In the majority for the Republican ticket every farmer in Pennsylvania should be included.

What Old Soldiers Think

At a meeting of the War Veterans Club of Philadelphia, held at Logan Hall, Philadelphia, on Saturday, October 1, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, During the many years of its supremacy, the Republican party has faithfully kept every promise made for the betterment of the people, and the advancement of the interests of the Veterans of the Civil War, and

Whereas, The candidates on the Republican State ticket are men of unimpeachable character and acknowledged fitness and eminent [illegible] for the respective offices for which they have been nominated and that they are justly entitled to, and should receive the united support of the Republican party. Therefore be it

Resolved, That The War Veterans Club of Philadelphia hereby endorse Hon. John K Tener for Governor, Hon. John M. Reynolds for Lieutenant Governor, Hon. Charles Frederick Wright for State Treasurer and Hon. Henry Houck for Secretary of Internal Affairs, candidates of the Grand Old Republican Party, and pledge their earnest and hearty support to said candidates, and further promise to use all honorable means within their power to bring about their triumphant election.

This is signed by W.H. Redsheffer, president of the old soldiers' club, and W J. Wray, secretary. The object of the club is to further the interests of comrades, and it has a large following.

Portugal's Revolution

By a short and not very bloody revolution in Portugal, the monarchial government has been overthrown and a republic declared. This revolution has taken place at Lisbon, the capitol of the government, but whether the same spirit of revolt against monarchy exists in the provinces enough to unite the spirit of democracy, remains yet to be seen. The chances, however, for the establishment of a stable republic, are not particularly favorable.

Although the spirit of democracy has flamed fiercely upon the European continent during the past fifty years, the movement has not resulted in self-government to any appreciable extent on the part of the people. Empires have risen and fallen, and old dynasties have been overthrown and new ones established, but France is the only republic to be formed out of the political chaos of European politics during the past half century. The people do not seem to be educated up to the requirements of self-government, and many opportunities for the abolishment forever of the monarchial form of government have gone by the board because the common people have not risen supreme at the crucial period. This is what is likely to happen to Portugal, and although this revolution will no doubt result in the elimination of much of the mediaeval elements that have hampered intellectual and material progress, it will not place the people in supreme command of the government.

The Cry of the Age is "Back to the Farm"

With the best market in the world at his door, the intensive farmer located in the Monongahela valley is the wise man of his generation.

Every town has as much need of the small truck, fruit and poultry farms around it as it has for more factories. Such farms make living better and cheaper for the laboring man and more business for the merchant.

I have secured control of a large farm within five minutes walk of the borough limits and will, within the next six weeks, sell it out in small farms. I now have purchasers for about one-half of it and owing to the great demand for small farms near Charleroi expect to close all sales for these farms in a very short time.

A farm big enough for all the boys to work as a truck, poultry and fruit farm while the father works at the mill, can be bought for the price of a cheap town lot. Good country school nearby.

A farm big enough to require the whole time of one intensive farmer can be bought for $500.00. Read the Pittsburg papers about the great land show which will be held there within the next few weeks and learn what can be raised on a few acres of ground by the new methods of intensive farming.

Call at the office of Charles O. Frye, 511 Washington Avenue, and get full particulars.

TEDDY FOLLOWED LEAD OF PENROSE

New York Platform the Same as Pennsylvania's.

ON ALL NATIONAL ISSUES

Republicans of Two Great States to Battle Under the Banner of Taft and a United Party.

Pennsylvania salutes New York and congratulates the Empire State for following the lead of the old Keystone commonwealth.

Under the leadership of Colonel Roosevelt the Republican convention recently held at Saratoga followed almost literally the planks of the platform bearing upon national issues adopted by the Republican state convention at Harrisburg, with Boies Penrose as the leading spirit in the party organization.

In their declarations of fealty to the time honored principles of the Republican party, their commendations of the splendid and remarkable work of the Taft administration, and the placing upon record of the progressive legislation of the present Republican congress, and especially their praise of the new tariff act, as not only framed to protect American capital and labor, but to insure largely increased returns for the support of the federal government, New York Republicans, with Roosevelt dominating their convention, were no more earnest nor emphatic than were the Republicans of this state, who weeks before had worked in accord under the leadership of Penrose.

Two Conventions Contrasted.

The Pennsylvania convention was the most harmonious ever held in the history of the state; there was not a dissenting voice to any plank in the platform either in committee or on the floor of the convention, and an unprecedented feature was the fact that not an opposing candidate was placed in nomination and not a vote was cast against any one of the men nominated on the state ticket.

While the New York gathering was most spectacular and sensational, Teddy finally had his way, and his way as far as the platform was concerned, at least, was "the Pennsylvania way."

Roosevelt and Penrose have been fast friends from the time of their college days. No president could have treated Penrose in the matter of personal consideration and patronage better than did Roosevelt. That under their direction Republicans of these neighboring states will work in unison to promote the general cause of Republicanism may be taken for granted. In close congressional districts on the border the Republican committees of both states will work together to defeat the common enemy, the Democratic party.

Roosevelt Appreciates Pennsylvania.

Roosevelt while a few weeks in his speech in Pittsburg, gave evidence of this appreciation of the work of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, when he was unstinted in his praise of the school laws, the liberal appropriations to public schools and to charities, the legislation to protect the lives of employes, for the conservation of the forests and the water ways and the other meritorious laws upon the statute books.

It has been a matter of comment that the one issue for which Roosevelt fought hardest in the New York convention, that of direct primaries, has already been met under the Penrose leadership, and along with the uniform primaries, Pennsylvania has the corrupt practices act and the personal registration law, which were passed by Republican legislators and signed by a Republican governor.

President Taft is showing a keen interest in the success of the Republican party in every state in the Union, and his speech at the dinner of the National Republican League in New York attests the concern he has for the election of every Republican candidate for congress.

Penrose Confers With Taft.

Senator Penrose had a couple of personal interviews with President Taft in Washington last week, following his official conferences with him and Postmaster General Hitchcock regarding the establishment of postal savings banks. As chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, Senator Penrose has given the subject of postal banks much study and he says he is pleased with the progress being made by the postal department to provide for this innovation. He is of the opinion that the proposed system is in advance of the methods employed in older countries.

Senator Penrose's conferences with the president were made the occasion of much newspaper comment. The Washington, D. C., Evening Star, an independent paper, directing attention to the strength of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, made this statement:

"Senator Penrose, since the wiping out of the New York "Old Guard" bosses, remains, next to Theodore Roosevelt himself, the greatest political chieftain in the country. Undisputed in his control of the Republican organization of the surest Republican state in the Union, Senator Penrose watches with interest the factional strife and contention all over the country. The storm has not reached his own state, and he and his organization are passing through the most quiet year politically they have had in some time. It is so placid that Senator Penrose has had little to do in the way of directing the leaders throughout the state."

Penrose seems to be one of the few prominent men in the Republican party who stand well with "the Old Guard," and who are on intimate terms with Roosevelt. It is believed that the relationship between Roosevelt and Penrose has more of a personal side, but while he was in the White House there was no one with whom Roosevelt talked more confidentially upon important political matters than he did with Penrose.
